Arvest Bank Unlocks Trade Finance Growth with Finzly

As global trade becomes faster and more complex, financial institutions face increased pressure to deliver greater speed, accuracy, and transparency across their international banking services. Arvest Bank, an Arkansas-based institution with over $27 billion in assets, began its modernization journey in 2020 by selecting Finzly as its trade finance partner. Since then, the bank has transformed its international banking operations, scaling with confidence and strengthening client relationships.

With a lean internal team and a reputation for reliability, Arvest couldn't afford a slow or disruptive transformation. Instead, it sought a cloud-based solution that could streamline workflows, increase transaction speed, and elevate client experience, while supporting continued growth and market expansion.

Key outcomes for the bank

Challenges

Before partnering with Finzly, Arvest managed its trade finance operations on a legacy system that struggled to keep up with modern demands. Manual processes consumed valuable staff time, transaction turnaround times were slow, and formatting inconsistencies created a less-than-polished client experience.

For a lean international banking team, these limitations were becoming increasingly unsustainable. Scaling trade finance services without growing headcount meant the bank needed a solution that could reduce friction, improve efficiency, and elevate the overall quality of delivery.

Strategic Requirements

Arvest was clear about its priorities. It needed a modern, cloud-based trade finance platform that could automate and simplify internal workflows while maintaining the flexibility to support complex instruments.

Just as important as the technology component, so was the formation of a long-term partnership. Arvest wanted a vendor that would move with agility, provide responsive support, and stay aligned with its long-term goals. With Finzly, the bank gained a partner that not only met these needs but exceeded expectations, all within a remarkably short implementation timeline.

Key outcomes

Since deploying Finzly's trade finance platform, Arvest has achieved significant gains across revenue, efficiency, and client satisfaction. Department revenue increased by more than 51%, with Finzly's solution playing a key role in enabling faster turnaround times and allowing the team to serve more clients without adding any headcount.

Additionally, the average processing time for critical instruments, such as standby letters of credit and documentary collections, dropped by 30%, enabling quicker client service and smoother operations.

Arvest's small but highly capable team is now empowered to manage a growing transaction volume with confidence and precision. Finzly's modern templates brought new consistency and professionalism to all client-facing outputs, boosting brand credibility and reducing time spent on formatting.

For Arvest Bank, trade finance is no longer a manual-heavy service line; it's a strategic growth engine. Since partnering with Finzly in 2020, the bank has modernized its processes, enhanced the client experience, and generated new revenue. The transformation has improved day-to-day operations, positioning Arvest to pursue broader market opportunities with agility and confidence.

Post-implementation partnership

Finzly's production team remains highly accessible in the post-implementation environment, ensuring any issues that arise are addressed quickly. Most support requests are resolved or met with a viable workaround by the end of the business day. This consistent responsiveness has reinforced Arvest's confidence in the platform and strengthened the long-term partnership between the two teams.

As the bank continues to grow its international banking business, it does so with a future-ready foundation and a partner committed to long-term success.

Finzly significantly benefits our business by streamlining operations, cutting costs and freeing teams for strategic tasks. Their adaptable platform ensures our competitiveness by enabling quick responses to market and customer needs. Finzly's proactive support maximizes the benefits of technology, empowering Arvest to deliver superior services and achieve its strategic objectives with agility.
